

DISCOVER

COREY S. POWELL NAMED EDITOR-IN-CHIEF OF DISCOVER MAGAZINE

Corey S. Powell has been named the Editor-in-Chief at DISCOVER, the nation's leading general-interest science magazine. Corey was previously the magazine's Executive Editor and has been an editor at DISCOVER for eleven years.

Commenting on the appointment, DISCOVER CEO & Publisher Henry Donahue said, "Corey's depth of knowledge and commitment to DISCOVER are obvious to all who have worked with him. Over the last year, he has also grown into a role as the public face of DISCOVER, appearing on TV, radio and in the press as a thoughtful commentator and advocate for the magazine. I am looking forward to continuing to work with him to improve and grow DISCOVER."

Editorial Director Patrice Adcroft added, "Corey is gifted in his ability to both grasp complex and cutting edge scientific information and then present that information in a lively and relevant manner to a lay audience. DISCOVER's six million readers are lucky to have Corey's clear vision and thinking guiding the magazine they so love."

Prior to DISCOVER, Corey was an editor at Scientific American and Physics Today. His book, God in the Equation – an exploration of the spiritual impulse in modern cosmology – was published in 2002 by the Free Press. Corey is also an adjunct professor of science writing in NYU's Science Health and Environmental Reporting Program and a contributing producer to BRINK, a new science magazine show on the Science Channel.

Corey lives with his wife and young daughter in the Park Slope neighborhood of Brooklyn, where he manages to find the stars (occasionally) with the help of the Amateur Astronomer's Association of New York.

About DISCOVER

DISCOVER poses essential questions and tackles highly topical, sometimes controversial issues on the cutting edges of science, technology and the future. Every month, DISCOVER features the groundbreaking innovators and seminal thought leaders who are shaping tomorrow's world today. DISCOVER is published by Discover Media LLC.

DISCOVER is online at DISCOVERmagazine.com.

PR Contact: Tricia Gately / 212.624.4799